Marion Honor Court Holds First Meeting At Camp In History of Harding Area

James Shipley, Troop 2, and Edward Mahnen, Troop 1, Made "Council Scouts" at Indian Ceremonial; Badges Awarded to Large Group

For the first time in the history of the Harding Area the Marion Court of Honor met at Camp John A. Owens last night. There was a large crowd of visitors present for the ceremony.

Scout Executive Walter C. Brown conducted the Indian ritual that has been a feature of Troop 2, and Scoutmaster Troop 1. "Council Fire" is the greatest honor that can be given a scout during his scouting career. Only boys of outstanding character and achievement in scouting are selected for this honor. Many scouts have been leaders in their lodges during the week. It is a credit that both groups have received inspection and all other parts of the camp.

Given Indian Names

Each of these honor scouts was given names that indicate their progress. Shipley won the name "Eagle" and Mahnen was also given a handsome name in the fire place in front of the Council Ring. The entire camp sang a song that was turned over to the president of the Council. Other members of the Court present were awarded to Troops 1 and 2, 4 and 7 of the 11 troops having these charters in the area. It was firmly considered by those in charge of the boys, the camp and the nation would be benefited by having met together and interest in scouting. The oldest chartered troop is Troop 4 in the new Trinity Baptist Church. The youngest group.

Badges Awarded

Badges were awarded to Troop 2, W. Stiffler, Troop Forge of Troop 4; Elmore Bush, James Jobe of Troop 1. Buzzy was made of Edward Troop 1, Buzzyns, who is a tenderfoot, completed his work, and yesterday hike to Waldo, which he ... Awarded to Webb, Marshall, Converse, Vestal, Gant, Zachman, Walker, Troop 10, Johnson, Goodman and Young; Troop 19, Johnson, Sites, Collmer, Roberts, Thomas, Ritter, Dant, McLead, Paul, Swamm..., Ritter, Lauer, Shirley, and Kall... Troop 7 received the same ... This troop was in charge of Scoutmaster Adams, and Assistant Scoutmaster Gast.

A first-year Service Star was presented to Willard Mautz, and a second year star to Elmore Bush. L. Jess and James Shipley were given their Star badges, and Ed Hachten his life saving award. Shipley was also presented with his merit badge in archery, which is the merit badge in this event to be given in the Harding area. Harry Dorn received his merit badge in pioneering, Robert Gates in swimming and horsemanship, Hachten in handicraft and Jesse in public health.

The program was concluded when the camp quartet sang taps. Among the visitors were "Col. Ellis" and his daughter Catherine, Ivan Smith and Cecil Davis. All of these men are actively connected with scouting in Kenton.

Field Meet

Troop 7, one of the youngest troops in the Area, eked out a victory in the first per... field meet by amassing four firsts, a second, and a third in the eight events. Arthur Rettger Troop 7, was high point man with a first in tent pitching, and two firsts in the aquatic events. Each period of the same events will be held in an effort to determine a championship troop of the Area. Due to the high standards that were established by the judges many were disqualified.

The knotting contest was won by the eighman team of Troop 9 of the Forest Town Church of Marion which finished first in the meet with 18 points. The team consisted of Dean Walker, Richard Mitchell, Roy Converse, Thomas Koons, Paul Webb, Fred Vestal, Bob Riel and Raymond Ross.

Troop 1, Marion, was only two points behind the winners in fire. John Sloan, and Ed Hachten won a first in the jousting event while their troop mates, Georges Jessup and Kern Malone were the faster in the bridge in the rest, and John Sites won the 25-yard swimming event. They also collected two second places and a third.

Prospect Groups Win

The Prospect troops entered four: John Sites, Dave Gast, Art Reterer; air tent pitching event, Charles Keller and Ed Hachten; the life saving corps, Art Reterer and Jesse Thomas all took first in their events as did Ivan Sites in the final recreation, and Art Reterer in the plunge.

Troop 19 also won a first when Fred Vestal ran the mile race in good time. The time records set in the various events will be broken before the entire two days have been held. Trophies are to be awarded to the troop that has the most record at the end of the season.

Baseball

The Baron Lodge practically won the baseball championship for the first period when they defeated the Mohawks 11 to 6. Holmes was the big boss doing the batting for the victors. Byrd's Forced Landing

...ounced addressed to prominent European officials.

The postoffice at Le Bourget was closed last night and the American officials feared the cards might get lost. So they asked and received permission from the postmaster general to take the sacks, in the event Byrd reached Le Bourget, to Paris and return them this morning to Le Bourget for stamping.

Dumaregue Congratulates

"We think we landed about 200 yards out from Ver-Sur-Mer," said Byrd, "but we are not sure. I am pleased to hear you tell me that Le Bourget field ceased to hear our automatic signals at 1:15 a. m. because that will aid us in determining what time we did come down."

The under prefect of the Calvados department told Byrd that he had received telephone instructions from President Gaston Doumergue of France to present his congratulations. Byrd thanked the official. He asked the prefect if he could get in touch immediately with the naval attache who meanwhile had left Paris for Ver-Sur-Mer.

Search for Airmen

Throughout the early morning hours all France, both the ground beneath and the sky above, was combed for the missing Americans. It was not until 8:20 o'clock that the mystery of the missing fliers was solved. At that hour the commandant of Le Bourget air depot received a telephone message from Havre stating that a report had been received there that Commander Byrd's plane had come down at Ver-Sur-Mer about 200 yards off the coast.

Within a few minutes another message was received bearing official confirmation of the first.

The first message had indicated the America landed in the water but it was not until the second was received that this was made certain.

Reports Safe Landing

Later a message was received from Ver-Sur-Mer saying that Byrd and his companions landed in the channel near that town at 2:32 o'clock this morning, having run out of gas and oil while seeking the mouth of the Seine, less than 50 miles away.

Some one perpetrated a heartless hoax just before 2 o'clock this morning when a report was put out that the plane had landed at Issy Les Moulineaux. Reporters hastened to the landing field at that place but found it deserted. There was no trace of Byrd and his companions.

Signals, which were believed to have come from the America, were picked up later, but no messages that contained information as to the location of the America nor her mechanical condition.

For hour after hour a large crowd stood at Le Bourget air depot waiting for the travellers. When news came from Brest that the America had passed over that port it seemed certain that Byrd would find his goal and crown his great effort with success.

Lights Search Sky

But as the hours passed and it became evident that Byrd had lost his way the people began to drift away.

Great searchlights—guiding lights—maintained at the field for the directing of airmen were kept playing upon the black rain clouds throughout the night. The officials of the field were on the alert for the noise of the three-motored machine.

Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, who had preceded Byrd and his companions on the transoceanic hop, were among the first to be notified of the safe landing of the Americans on the coast.

"I am glad they're safe and they can claim success for they flew from New York to France without a stop!" exclaimed the two Americans in unison.

Go to Ver-Sur-Mer

Chamberlin and Levine said they fully appreciated the difficulties of the flight Byrd had made and they praised the air worthy qualities of the Fokker plane.

"I will surely be glad to congratulate Byrd and his fellow aviators," said Chamberlin.

"And so will I," added Levine.

Capt. E. D. White, naval attache to the United States Embassy, and a group of officials left Paris at 10:45 in two automobiles for Ver-Sur-Mer to bring the fliers back to Paris.

When it came 3 o'clock and the Americans had not appeared attendants of the station at Le Bourget became convinced that the Atlantic had been flyers' graves unmarked. It was a big disappointment, especially as the Americans gathered at the depot.

Weather Is Ideal

Ideal weather to reach Le Bourget was the setting for the reception. The sky, dotted with fine white puffy clouds, immediately overhead the Le Bourget airdrome and the parks of the suburb of Le Bourget through which the road leads to the airdrome, but on the horizon, in the direction of the coast, there was a gray haze.

It was not dense for the American had flown the full distance planned—even further in fact. But the exact navigation was not maintained with the absolute regularity maintained by

NEW YORK GIRL GREETS AVIATOR

Ver-Sur-Mer, France, July 1—The first woman to greet Commander Richard E. Byrd and his transatlantic flying companions on French soil was a former New York girl, now the wife of a French citizen. She also was probably the first person in France to issue a positive command to the naval command. It was an order to "shut up."

Her name is Madam Tanugi, and before her marriage she was Miss Estelle De Jongh of New York.

Madam Tanugi and her husband, who are vacationing at this village, were the only persons in the village at the time of the America's forced landing who could speak English. Madam Tanugi was called at 5 o'clock in the morning to act as interpreter for the strange Americans.

And then she gave Commander Byrd his first order when Byrd complained because he had not reached Paris. Madam Tanugi snapped:

"Shut up! You get to France, anyway."

"Yes, but not to Paris," Byrd answered sadly.

MAN'S STAY IN DAYTON WORKHOUSE IS SHORT

Bond for Frank Russell's Release Accepted by Judge W. R. Martin

The stay of Frank Russell, taken to Dayton this morning to start a six-months sentence in the workhouse was brief. Within two hours after the patrolman left this city for Dayton, a bond for his release was accepted by Municipal Judge W. R. Martin and a telegram ordering that Russell be brought back to this city was forwarded to the workhouse.

Russel was arrested early this week on a non-support charge preferred by his wife and was given a sentence of six months in the workhouse by Judge Martin. After receiving his sentence an effort was made by his wife to have him released under bond for the support of the children. A bond of $1,000 to cover a period of 12 years until the children reached the age of 16 years, was fixed by the court. Russell was held here several days pending the signing of the bond and was taken to Dayton this morning when it was thought the signatures could not be secured. Handcuffs was carried this morning and his release ordered.

MARION TRAFFIC CLUB REORGANIZED HERE

Enlarged To Include Many Cities in Central Ohio; Name Changed

Sixty-five representatives of huge manufacturing plants in surrounding cities were present at the reorganization meeting of the Marion Traffic Club last night at the Harding Hotel, when the organization was enlarged to include cities in Central Ohio and its name changed to the Central Ohio Traffic Club.

Cities as far west as Lima, north to Tiffin and Findlay, east to Ashland and Mansfield, and south to Delaware, were taken into the club. This circle includes in addition to those named, Bucyrus, Upper Sandusky, Galion, Mt. Gilead, Kenton, Carey and others.

Asa Queen, principal speaker for the occasion, gave an interesting talk on the benefits of such an organization to the various committees, which were included.

The club has been founded for the good of the shippers and serves as a medium between shippers and carriers, Mr Queen stated. The organization is eager to cooperate with all who wish to present their shipping problems for consideration. Difficult questions regarding traffic are threshed out at regular meetings of the club with a number of the best authorities on the subject presenting their views.

The American-Broadway quartet of the Pennsylvania Railroad, coming here from Chicago, delighted those present at the meeting with their selections. Members of the quartet, all railroad men, were J. I. Kirsch, first tenor; G. K. Stair, second tenor; George I. Laing, baritone, and R. E. Cook, bass, with Art Jobler as accompanist.

It was planned to hold the annual outing of the Central Ohio Traffic Club, July 21, at Garfield Park.

WARNING AGAINST DOGS DURING HEAT ISSUED

Officials Say Torrid Weather Makes Animals Cross; Two Children Bitten

With the coming of hot weather reports of cross dogs are on the increase. Two children have been the victims of such dogs within the past few days. Dick Chapman, the five-year-old grandson of Patrolman Roy Chapman, narrowly escaped serious injury several days ago when he was thrown to the ground by a large police dog near his home on E. Center-st. A deep gash had been made in the back of his head by the dogs teeth, before he could be driven away.

Dick was watching several older children feed the dog, when it suddenly leaped for the boy throwing him to the ground. The dog was finally driven off and was later disposed of by the owner. A physician was called and the boy's injuries were dressed.

Betty Jane Griffith, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Griffith, Bellevue-av was the second victim. The girl was on her way to attend Bible school and as she passed several children who were holding a dog, they suddenly released the animal which seized the girl by the leg. She managed to free herself before the dog's teeth had penetrated the skin.

Sheriff Deal was notified and the dog was taken to the pound and killed.

HARVEY STOLL FINED

BYRD OVER PARIS

About 12:30 this morning word came from Byrd that he was looking for the Le Bourget airdrome. For a time the signals from his ship grew more distinct and hope run high at the field.

Then the signals became less frequent and finally died away.

There was a heart-breaking wait and then, at 2 o'clock, word was flashed to Le Bourget field and announced by the commandant to the press that the America had landed at Issy Les Moulineaux, an old flying field 20 miles from Paris. There was jubilation at the airport when this information was received. The enthusiasm was short-lived, however, for reporters, upon dashing to Issy Les Moulineaux, found that there had been no landing there—that the report was false.

Many of the watchers lost heart after this information had been proved to be untrue and thousands straggled from the field.

This morning only newspaper reporters and the police still were on watch, and then—at about 8:30—word came that the fliers had landed in the English Channel near Ver-Sur-Mer.

All the world is glad that Byrd and his three companions are safe We believe that it is safe to say that all the world is sorry that they did not reach their goal, for all the world likes to see brave men who dare succeed in their undertakings.

It would have been most pleasing had the America been able to land at Le Bourget, for that would have established still another world record—that of a heavier-than-air machine carrying four persons in a non-stop flight from New York to Paris. As it is, Byrd and his companions have the honor of being the first four to cross the North Atlantic at its greatest breadth in a non-stop aeroplane flight, which is a world record, and there is a probability that they may also have attained a new time-in-the-air record over distance—the elapsed time from the take-off at Roosevelt field to the plunge into the water at Ver sur Mer near Havre.

The start made by the America, despite the muddy field, was a splendid one, and the early stages of the dash indicated a successful flight, but when report came back Thursday that the America had battled storm and fog and frost for sixteen hours, without seeing either land or water, there was reasonable ground for figuring that no new record for accuracy in the following of a course would be attained. There was, also, a disquieting note in the message that the aviators had thrown out some of their extra gasoline supply Chamberlin was forced to the same course of action, only to feel the need of the gas later and be forced to land and suffer mishap for lack of it.

We do not know what the results of the flight in a scientific way may be, but as a flight it can not be held that it appeals to the admiration as have some of its forerunners One swallow does not make a summer, and the fact that Byrd and the courageous and daring men with him did not reach their destination through failure of their instruments to indicate their course can not be taken as proof that dependence can not be placed upon such instruments, but as a matter of fact the outstanding flight is that of Lindbergh who placed less dependence on instruments than he did on his sense of direction, who seems to have used the same instinct which enables a homing pigeon to fly straight to its cote.

A Christian Churchman's Warning.

Before sailing for Europe to preach at the 1,300th anniversary of what is now York Minster, England, and to attend the Lausanne conference Bishop William T Manning, head of the Episcopal church of New York state, denounced in no uncertain terms the prevalent tendencies toward the lowering of the standards of married life and the morals of the younger generation.

We have heard so much on the subject of "companionate marriages" from former Judge Ben Lindsey, voted out of office by the people of Denver and finally, after two years of usurpation, thrown out by court decree, from his imitators in the pulpit avid for notoriety and from college professors and writers of loose moral standards, that it is heartening to get the views of a recognized churchman of high standing whose morals and Christianity are alike unquestioned

In his parting statement in denunciation of the sins which have been committed against morality in the past and in warning against their future continuance, Bishop Manning said, in part

"The message that I should like to send all over our land, if I could, is that it is time for our honest, unsuspecting people to wake up to what is going on among us in regard to those standards of morality and right living which have been the strength of our race and acceptance of which has been the mark of all progress from barbarism toward civilized life

"There seems now to be a group in the church itself which holds that the church may consider with open mind 'sanctioning adultery among our young people' with the use of birth control to guard against the coming of children This is, in plain language, what the high sounding phase 'companionate marriage' means, and yet this proposal was mentioned as one to which consideration should be given at the recent church conference in San Francisco and its consideration is being commended by not a few professors in our universities

"I was shown only a few days ago a questionnaire which was sent out by a male professor in one of our best known women's colleges to the young women of that institution, in which not only is the so-called 'companionate marriage' definitely suggested, but the questions asked of these girls are of such a nature that it would be improper for me to quote them here And within a week or two I have had a letter from a young woman student in another college in another part of the country telling me that in her sociology course she has been assigned 'Companionate Marriage' as her topic for a paper she is to prepare

"And I see that a prominent preacher in this city, if he is correctly reported, preaching to a body of students scoffed at the idea of 'trying to send a new generation into the world with a definite code of right and wrong' and told these young people that the old ideas of 'right' and 'wrong' have been dropped and that the criterion of behavior is simply what we happen to regard as 'beautiful' and 'ugly' —which means, I suppose, that there is no longer any law of God which is binding upon us and that our only standard is our own taste of preference If this is true, if there is no law of God which must be obeyed we need not wonder if our young people adopt 'companionate marriage' or any other suggestion Judge Lindsey's advocacy of 'unmarried unions' is publicly commended by college professors, writers and other well-known people, among some ministers of religion.

"I call attention to these facts because I think it is time for all us especially for those of us who are parents to realize what the situation is We would not knowingly allow a newspaper or magazine to come into our homes which suggested to our young people to enter into 'unmarried unions' and to practice birth control so as to escape having children Why, then, should we allow this suggestion to be made to them by ministers of religion or university professors under the specious plea of 'open mindedness' Dean Inge said truly the other day that one of the greatest features of the present time is 'our lack of the capacity for moral indignation'

"If I thought that the church would listen with 'open mind' to such a proposal as this I would not lift another finger for the building of the cathedral or for any other cause in the church I know that the church will not listen to it, but it is time for all of us to speak our minds and to use plain words

"It is time for us to say that the advocacy of 'unmarried unions' and 'sex experiments' is not only shameful but damnable—a sin against God and an affront to all right-minded people, both young and old And it is time for us to see to it that we know what is being taught to our children in our churches and in our universities"

While we do not fear for a minute the overthrowing of the church we do feel that there is a need for an awakening among the people to the crimes which are being committed against it under the joint guise of religion and education by moral misfits in the ministry and in our institutions of so-called learning. While we have no doubt of the permanency of Christianity, we have doubts for the safety of many of the youth of the land who do not recognize the wide gulf between Christianity and the mouthings of some of those who profess to teach it, who may not recognize the fact that even in the ministry, as in our college faculties, may occasionally be found mental libertines and moral lepers Christianity and the church which have withstood the assaults of the ages and the vile for centuries will outlive those who today would defile them but our fear is that, before those who would thus prostitute the church are driven out of it they may inflict scars upon the youth of the land which can not be effaced.

This is the danger against which Bishop Manning warns, this is the explanation of his appeal to the decent, church-going people of the land to cleanse the church and our universities of the evil influences which have taken root within them.

From all reports it's a matter of some difficulty to keep cool with coolidge out in the ozark hill The weatherman up there is liable to lose his job.

Prenatal "Marking" Absurd.

BY ROYAL S COPELAND, M. D.

There are many popular ideas which are founded on vague and uncertain evidence Many popular beliefs have no foundation whatever

Birthmarks are due to explainable and reasonable causes It is not true that prenatal emotions have their effect in producing deformities of the body of a baby Maternal impressions may affect the nervous system, but certainly not the body of the unborn child

I recall reading with some interest some time ago an account of a baby born without an ear It is so remarkable I will venture to repeat it

One of my earlier patients told me this story which recites what she believed to be the actual cause of the baby's unhappy defect

When this young mother was carrying her baby she visited her old home An obstreperous tom cat had annoyed the family and her brother decided to destroy it He caught the cat and while he was preparing to kill it, the young woman watched the proceedings from the window

Holding the beast by the tail the brother brought down the axe, intending to decapitate it The animal jumped but not far enough to escape injury, as its ear was severed from the head Then it escaped from its tormentor and rushed across the yard, jumping on the sill of the window where the expectant mother stood

The young woman ran screaming from the horrid sight She was fully convinced her baby would be "marked" It was born without an ear

This is indeed a remarkable coincidence, but it is merely a coincidence There was not the slightest relationship between the two circumstances.

Fully six months before birth, the baby's body has been fully formed The parts are defined and while they are tiny they are all there It is utterly impossible for a shock or mental emotion of the mother to cut off a finger, a leg, or an ear

God is too kind to inflict such a possibility upon mankind In His infinite mercy He has provided against such a calamity.

The expectant mother need not worry over the absurd idea that she may mark her baby Such things never happen

She may meet a "cross-eyed witch" or a "port wine marked face. She may see a terrible accident where some dreadful mutilation occurs Some of her experiences may be decidedly unpleasant to the mother, but they will not affect her child in the least

Perhaps you believe marking the baby is a possibility Your friends may tell you it is true But, dear mother it isn't true Birthmarks come from other causes

Vagrant Verse.

BLIND LOVE.

Now do I know that Love is blind, for I
Can see no beauty on this beauteous earth,
No life, no light, no hopefulness, no mirth,
Pleasure nor purpose, when thou art not nigh
Thine absence exiles sunshine from the sky
Seems Spring's maturity, checks Summer's birth
Leaves Lynette pipe as still as plaster cast
And makes me in abundance find but dearth

But when thy feet flutter the dark, and thou
With orient eyes darkness on my distress,
Suddenly sings a bird on every bough,
The heavens expand, the earth grows less and less—
The ground is buoyant as the ether now,
And all looks lovely in thy loveliness

Then which hast shewed me great and sore troubles, shalt quicken me again, and shalt bring me up again from the depths of the earth.—Psalm 71:20

OFFICIAL WEAKNESS

The war department grows careless, or indifferent, or jealous of subservience to the mawkish impact of the pacifist opposition to the matter of an annual test of our strength and resources in face of war emergency

It is not one million dollars to fear in public places expressions of outrage, disgust and disgrace with reference to that quality of official cowardice which bore bitter influences in this country which make for national retrogression These processes are becoming more frequent and more general God send that they may become overwhelming This America of ours is in danger—not from Russia or England, or Japan, or from all the forces of the world combined, but from the activities and influence of a deadly spawn spawning within its borders The jobs and horror of it is that thousands of the people imagine themselves to be patriots and Christians They in sad reality are but cable puppets of bolshevism and of the communist reform leadership of the day—the leadership which does not work for nothing which fails not to collect its tithes from the ranks of the credulous legions who permit others to do their thinking for them who are soothed in the slough of their own moral and intellectual slavery by the beating of vampire wings animated with holy oil

If the pacifists have been successful in preventing the war department's plan of annually testing the preparedness of the nation by holding a "Defense Test" day during which the citizen army of the nation should be mobilized for inspection

Pacifists, pulpiteers and golden-rule parchosis will never stop enemy bullets or stay enemy ships or aeroplanes If only the psalm-singers were affected, there could be no objection to their propaganda or procedure, but they want to put you and me and all that we own in the balance with their piddling prophecies It is time the country should awake from its complacent sense of security The guns of deadly destruction are at our door and they are aimed at the invisible arm of the American constitution.—Cincinnati Enquirer

BY DECISIVE MAJORITY.

The decisive majority by which the house of commons passed the anti-suicide bill is a fair indication of the temper of the British mind With the results of the experiment before it and many of its harmful effects in evidence, a great majority was of the opinion that adequate steps should be taken to put it in force

In at least one respect the new law is vague and indefinite It provides penalties against the government, and it is not clear that the British government engages in the few unofficial activities the likelihood of a direct strike on any of them is remote But the new law extends to the hundred to government employees Strikes in basic industries such as coal or transportation would doubtless be held strikes against the public and accordingly illegal

The law's success will depend largely upon its administration If it is invoked in minor labor disputes on the ground that every cessation of work is a matter of public interest, it will make no end of trouble for the government which sponsored it and which now proposes to enforce it Applied only to cases where a strike will cause at least a fifty per cent chance of success, it may have an adverse strike effect to remain as powerful as they are at present—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MOSCOW RED UNREADING.

The recent execution of a score of monarchists by soviet Russia is said to have been in reprisal for the assassination in Warsaw of the Russian minister to Poland If so there is further justification for the fact that only a few of the cost of the world was able to get very much information about the assassination

The truth is it is not for all the notion some folk may have that the soviet powers are gradually leaning back to civilized ways, the world doesn't look on them with any favor at all

In this matter of the assassination of Voikoff most people looked with indifference, even with satisfaction, on the killing of the signer of the death warrant of Czar Nicholas II exactly because he stood for what is outdated and savage

Nor is this a reversion to blood thirst The members of the soviet's many murders still cost a human note. That the government of Russia should make bloody reprisals now serves to open an enlightened peoples in the belief that there is still sin in decreeing to countenance the Moscow government.—Minneapolis Journal

CHAPTER FORTY-FIVE

NOW spoke Tribe Four:

For revealing to us the true character of the imposter, whose wisdom was artificial and not inspired of Allah, what reward shall we mete out to Youcoub el-Bachir?

Before himself, Larry started. Youcoub el-Bachir had, after all, been a friend. He recalled vividly that his interest for the fellow had prompted him in the prison chamber. Furthermore, now that the man had disappeared along Omar ben Medjad's message to win for himself knowledge of the Marabout Group; and it occurred without saying of course that the surveyed villian was now down among the Temple prisoners for the same reason—seeking to hear that which might be of interest or value to the group. Larry now heard the voice of Tribe Seven speaking:

"He was promised a pardon for having been a member of the Party of Ibn Tuk el-Abda, Tribe One. Should, then, see that he gets it. However, it is quite probable that by this time he has wormed his way into the confidence of many an evil-hearted conspirator in the prison-chamber and obtained news that we shall find need of."

"Let him have his pardon," said Tribe Six impatiently, sensing that the others had waited quietly for him to speak. Now, since he was supposed to be the leader of this group of scheming fools, he deemed to take another stage, and on the instant hurled himself into the midst of a subject that was at all times uppermost in his mind.

"Give a thought to the youth Allal Abdi. He is in the prison chamber. It is my mind that Allah in his wisdom delivered the youth into our hands that it is not wisdom on our part to keep the boy in the prison chamber where seditious utterances of the others may stir his thoughts to rebellion against us, once more."

"How could we know your will, Tribe Six? We have had your message saying you were coming, but we have not conversed with you in eight days. It was only when word came that you were at the Eye, awaiting to witness the Ordeal, that we knew you would join us here. Wherefore, when the youth Allal Abdi arrived we know it was not your will that he be put in the chamber with the remainder of the Temple prisoners."

At these words Larry permitted himself a soft, happy oath beneath his breath. If these men had not seen the youth in more than a week, his own task was easier. He

"Does it not seem that the youth is in peace under Allah who should be guarded closely by himself? Truly, he promised his life when he agreed to renounce his ambitions, but may not a moment strife if left to mingle with men? And now that I am here it is in mind that I would hold talk with Allal Abdi. Perhaps he could answer certain questions that I would put to him."

Now Tribe Five spoke:

"Yes, surely, you may do as you will with the youth, Tribe One, but it would be well to make haste. I am loath to remind you. With tomorrow's dawn the mouloud will have started and with the mouloud will comes—" He paused, dramatically. Larry, seeing that here was a opportunity for him to send home a shot that would surely portray him as the real Marabout of Adrar, finished:

"The more for supreme power!"

A silent hisses, as of breaths drawn sharply in hot anticipation, answered the words, and as a man the marabouts save only Tribe Two, repeated:

"Supreme power!"

Only he was the only one who seeming

TWO WOMEN FOUND HELP

Their Sickness Banished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Nina Matteson, Box 206, Ireland, N. Y. writes—"If it had not been for your medicine, I could not have done my work as it should have been done. Mother told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I had read in different papers what it had done for different women. She wanted me to try it, so my husband got me one bottle at first; then I took two others. • • • Now I am feeling quite strong again." Mrs. Ernest Tangney of Adams, Mass., says she was ill for four years and could not sleep nights or go out on the street. She read about the Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking eight bottles she was able to do all her work and go anywhere and is quite herself again.

This dependable Vegetable Compound is a household word in thousands of homes. The fourth generation is now learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If this medicine has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you? At your druggist's.

Summer Boarders

Mr. Smithers tries to out smart the others on Friday night and finds several others also thought they would avoid the Saturday rush

Verily, you are a man after my own heart. Tell me, what did you do with the Marabout of Adrar? Rather, with the man who has posed as the real marabout, while the holy man of Adrar, guised as Youcoub el-Bachir, has spied hitre and yon to serve his own ends and the ends of this group of bloody villains."

"Omar ben Mediad," breathed Larry, incredulously, for it was difficult to understand how this marvellously versatile man had come here. Only a few hours earlier he had been the Sheikh Tahar el-Hassan, commanding something like two thousand hard bitten fighting men, whom he called his Swords of the South. The American's astonishment, therefore, knew no bounds. Again Omar ben Madjad chuckled.

"Be not amazed, my friend. As a sheikh it was easy for me to reach Tribe Two. As a man of some strength, it was still easier for me to throttle the dog and hide his body. When the proper time comes I shall once again be the Sheikh Tahar el-Hassan. Had I known you would so marvellously contrive to become Tribe One, the greatest present existing power in all the Atlas, no doubt I would have been content to remain a sheikh even yet. Tell me, amazing man, how you did it."

"I simply chuckled some dynamite at the old marabout and my guards, blew them to hell, took the holy imposter's robes and walked here. Fortunate circumstances, such as the words these bloody devils spoke when I entered, led me on the right course of procedure. But I wrecked that fine room where they make the Prophet's Eye," he added, reminiscently, a happy gleam in his eyes.

Recipes for New and Novel Dishe; Household Ideas and Suggestions

Steak a la king, as given below, is almost as appetizing as chicken a la king and less expensive and less work. With baked potatoes and a substantial salad the dish makes a hearty meal, which is given the finishing touch by the light strawberry dessert. Why not serve graham crackers with the strawberries? I wonder they are not more used as an accompaniment for milk puddings and fruit desserts.

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Philip Hears About Queer People

LILLIAN'S answer to Philip Veritzen's sally was prompt and mirthful, but I saw that her eyes were fixed upon me as she spoke and that her thoughts were focussed upon my reaction to her announcement that she and her daughter, Marion were not coming to the farmhouse for the Summer. Yet her words betrayed no hint of the inward disturbance which I was sure was hers.

"If you're only inhrm enough," she told Mr. Veritzen laughingly, "Madge will welcome you into her home gladly. That's her specialty, taking care of derelict humans, dogs and cats. There's usually a menagerie outdoors and a hospital inside wherever she is."

"What preposterous nonsense, Lillian!" I protested at this exaggerated reference to unwillingness to turn away any tramp seeking a night's shelter in the barn, or to have any stray dog or cat put out of the way. But Lillian rattled on as if I had not spoken.

"Of course you'd have to be a total wreck for Madge to take any interest in you," she said. "People who can take care of themselves do not appeal to her at all."

"I shall have to devise some way of getting crippled artistically," Mr. Veritzen replied, with a challenging glance at me. But I was quite proud of the perfunctory little smile I gave him in answer, the sort of thing which a fatigued hostess gives to the hundredth "You've given us such a marvelous evening," and then I turned to Lillian with a topic which I knew was sure not only to engross her attention but call forth her loquaciousness. I was resolved to give Philip Veritzen no more opportunity for the embarrassing personal comments he appeared determined to voice.

"There's one lodge in the wilderness which is lost to you this Summer," I said. "I've hated to tell you ever since I heard the news."

She struck her hands together in burlesqued despair.

"Don't tell me 'The Larches' is sold," she begged and there was real apprehension in her tone. Ever since she first saw the rambling, neglected old place years ago upon her first visit to the farm, she has admired it, although, because of a crabbed rebuff by the caretaker, neither of us ever repeated our first essay to pass the group of towering larches which guarded the place and bid its beauties from the profane eyes of passers-by.

"Not sold, but rented," I told her, "to the queerest group of people I ever have seen."

"I breathe again," she said theatrically, ignoring my reference to the new tenants of "The Larches." "For years," she said, turning to Mr. Veritzen, "it has been my ambition to own "The Larches," a neglected country estate near to the Graham farmhouse. Of course, there isn't the slightest chance of my ever having money enough to buy a corner of the barn, and I wouldn't have the slightest idea what to do with it if I did have it. But I've had the fun of dreaming about it all these years that it has been unoccupied. And now somebody else has it! I'll wager the occupants don't know enough to appreciate it, whoever they are."

I silently agreed with her as I remembered the half contemptuous, careless words with which Eleanor Lincoln, the young chatelaine of "The Larches," had answered my encomiums of the place. Yet honesty compelled me to admit that I was sure the reason for Miss Lincoln's indifference was her probable past sojourns in much more beautiful places.

"They like it but they're not particular enthusiastic over it," I said.

"Then they have eyes that see not'," Lilian intoned dramatically. "But you said they were a lot of queer fish. Tell me about them."

A swift, sudden recollection came to me, that of Noel Veritzen's surprising reaction and disclosure when he had been told the nationality of the men in the shack at the edge of our farmstead. I felt an overweening curiosity to know what the boy's stately poised father would do with a similar revelation.

"In the first place," I said, "although the young mistress of the place denies it, I am sure they are all Transylvanians."

TWO SPEAKERS APPEAR BEFORE KIWANIS CLUB

Mt. Gilead Group Hears Report on Memphis Convention

Mt Gilead July 1 The Mt Gilead Kiwanians were doubly entertained during the luncheon yesterday in the Moreen Room of the Globe Hotel a sharp contrast to the two former meetings at which there were no speakers

The first speaker was M M Barry, former principal in the high school here and now superintendent of the Berea schools who gave a report of the Memphis Kiwanis convention He outlined to the Kiwanians many interesting events of the convention He stated that although the attendance was unexpectedly low, due to some apprehension of the recent flood devastation, the attendance reached 4 200 members from U S and Canada He stated that a report given at this meeting showed there were 625 Kiwanis Clubs throughout the country having a membership of 10,000

Among his notes were found the eight objectives for the next Kiwanis year: to promote good citizenship, to encourage universal use of the franchise, to do constructive work for underprivileged children, to better urban and rural relations, to practicable appoint vocational guidance among the youth, to work for a higher standard of ethics in business and professional life to create a sound, sane public opinion on matters of national and international import and to enrich good will and fellowship among the members

Leaming Talks

G L Leaming then spoke to the members on Indian life He told of recently returned from the west where he has been in Indian schools He said Mr Leaming are touring the east He has been principal of an Indian School at Polacca Ariz in the east there He told of the Indian school their purposes and the improvement made in the manner of life The schools make no attempt to prepare the students for any profession but gave him practical ideas He stated that the school day included 90 minutes of work and 120 minutes of study During the working period the Indians both boys and girls learn to cook and prepare their own meals

One of the interesting highlights of this talk was an account of the snake dance by the Indians This dance is dance by the Indians given once a year and is a prayer for rain During the dance the Indians grasp the snakes in their mouths and go through a ritual after which the snakes are freed to use their influence in bringing rain The snakes used in this dance do not have their poison fangs removed He stated that many eminent men are regular attendants of this ritual

W E Reynolds, of Mansfield, and a petitioner of the Public Utilities Commission for the right to run a bus line through Mt Gilead to Columbus was present at this meeting and received the support and promise of cooperation of the Kiwanis in his project

PYTHIANS PLAN INITIATION AT CEDAR POINT

Two-Day Meeting Scheduled for Aug. 27 and 28; Marion Company in Charge

Initiation of a class of candidates representing companies of the Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias from all parts of Ohio and expected to be the largest in the history of the organization in this state, will take place at Cedar Point at a two-day meeting to be held Aug. 27 and 28 with Marion Company No. 13, in charge of the initiatory ceremony.

Preliminary plans for attending the event were discussed at the regular weekly meeting of Marion Company last night.

Indications that the class will be of record-breaking proportions have come from a company in Columbus, which reports that it already has approximately 100 candidates signed up for the initiation.

The two-day session, the first of its kind ever held, is being planned as the result of a movement started under the direction of James H. Ramey of this city, brigadier general of the Ohio brigade. Arrangements for entertainment are in charge of Garfield Company No. 13, of Sandusky.

Dance Planned

Included in the entertainment plans is a dance to take place Saturday night, Aug. 27. The dance as well as music for the event are to be donated by the G. A. Boeckling Co., the concern which operates Cedar Point. Assembly hall and office rooms for the meeting will also be donated by the Boeckling company.

General Samuel Trabue, of Rushville, Ind., head of the national Uniform Rank organization and Robert Witt, of Milwaukee, supreme chancellor of the order of Knights of Pythias, are included among prominent Pythians expected to attend.

Inspection of the sixth Ohio regiment, of which Henry H. Gilbert of this city is colonel, is to take place Sunday morning, August 28, with state officers in charge.

Eager and Curious Describes 43 Youths Enjoying "Y." Outing at Hepburn Camp

A broad smile a healthy look a tanned face sunburned shoulders and a few gentle mosquito bites are the accomplishments that 43 Marion lads are proud of, after romping and playing for more than a week in the great open spaces of Camp Robert Lucas Hepburn.

These 43 youths ranging in age from 12 to 15 years have had a wonderful time and benefited as well as appearing well for All are active boys and make every minute from 6:30 a. m. to 9:30 p. m. count.

And of all collections which could be sent to camp the campers the most representative are eager and curious. They are in for everything and will try anything once.

The old game "The Snow Has Gone" played at the camp the other night was new to the feature for many. Gathered around the supply campfire All of these boys were city youngsters and a few had never been where would not go in the dark unless they be given the honor of holding the spear at the head of Camp Director D. M. Burson, who went out recently to bag a few of the snipes which were supposed to be running loose through the woods.

Youths Accused

Not many "snipes" as could be seen, were caught for as the group of hunters strode silently through the darkness of the forest, a man armed with a rifle, confronted the youths and ordered them to stand. Surprised then at seeing the campers and before a move could be made or a word spoken he fired a volley of buckshots into the air. Hearing the lads about their sense of direction and their legs it was then and not a great many minutes passed before the entire gang was huddled about the fire at the camp.

Although the campers were eager to build a camp fire it did not take long to learn at the camp that the gathering was to cook. William Yarr, Most of the youths are clamoring for another

Camp uniforms are the order of the day and the wearing of the camp uniform work must be accomplished and a number of points must be gained in athletics before the campers are awarded to the candidates.

Fishing Contest

The contest in which a cash prize for the boys are interested is the competition for the heaviest game catch. The largest fish for which a prize of $1 has been offered by Secretary Myron Veeburg of the Marion Y. M. C. A. and George Schoenlein is at the present the leader after catching a 12½ white sucker, last week.

All but two of the lads at the camp have a knowledge of the art of swimming. These two are in a special swimming class under the direction of Jack Ulery, physical director, Ohio State University football player and it is expected that they will learn the ways of the fish before the camp is over. Six boys have already been initiated into the Polliwog Club and will receive their degrees before the camp breaks up.

Arise at 6:30 A. M.

The boys are routed out of bed at 6:30 each morning at the sound of a bugle and before breakfast the flag is raised, exercises are taken and the boys dip in the lake. Events of the morning include inspection of quarters, a swim, Bible study and athletics until the gong rings for the noon meal. A rest period follows this and more athletic games are taken part in as well as another swim. The feature of the night program is a camp fire which is looked forward to by the adventure-loving youths.

The usual camp accidents in form of bee stings, stubbed toes and sun blisters are cared for by the camp physician, Jack Ulery and Don Burson. Every morning and night the patients line up in front of the office and await to be doctored. Mrs. D. M. Burson is first assistant to the camp doctor.

TWO PROPOSALS LEND INTEREST TO ELECTION

Remodeling of Courthouse and Storm Water Sewer May Be Placed on Ballot

With prospects of two special propositions of unusual importance being submitted to local voters at the election next fall there is probability of more interest being displayed in the coming primaries than has been anticipated, thus far according to opinions expressed by local political leaders.

The county commissioners have practically decided to place before electorate plans for remodeling the courthouse and converting it into a four-story structure. City council at the same time is seriously considering bringing out the storm water sewer issue again by giving the voters a chance to decide whether the city is to have adequate drainage in the future or continue facing the flood menace every time there happens to be a rain of more than a usual proportions.

Voters Must Act

The courthouse improvements are to be made per the storm water sewer system enlarged without authority from the voters. In order to finance either project bonds must be issued and the people must give their consent.

The courthouse project would cost in the vicinity of $100,000 and the sewer proposal would be submitted only to the city.

Both are questions of vital importance and would be certain to attract to the polls a large number of voters who might otherwise stay at home, perhaps inconvenient with local political affairs.

An especially well-organized campaign will be made in behalf of the sewer proposal, according to present indications, and all citizens will be urged to go to their voting places and help put the project across. Aligned with this campaign will be the Marion Real Estate Board and other organizations of business men, as well as city officials, all of whom declare that enlargement and improvement of the sewer system is one of the city's most urgent needs.

Cellars Flooded

In making this claim they cite the damage and inconvenience caused throughout the city twice during the last few months when there were heavy rains which overtaxed the sewers and resulted in many streets and hundreds of cellars being flooded.

Should neither of these proposals be submitted it is generally conceded that the vote at the fall election will be unusually light as there is no general interest apparent in contests for the various local offices.

Party nominations for city offices will be made at the primary Aug. 9, which is certain to be an unusually quiet affair, only one contest being created.

Township and school district officials also are to be elected. These nominations are to be made by petition, the law providing that petitions must be filed not later than 60 days prior to the election date.

Three board of education members are to be elected in the Marion school district. F. C. Gegenheimer, Hector S. Young and Mrs. F. H. King are the present members whose terms expire and it is expected that all three will be for re-election.

MANSFIELD ATTORNEY ADDRESSES KIWANIANS

Charles Workman Says Declaration of Independence Is Great Political Document

The Declaration of Independence is not a legal but a political document, terse and simple and designed for the sole purpose of keeping up the courage of the colonists during the Revolutionary war, declared Charles Workman, Mansfield attorney and a nationally known historian, in a talk before the members of the Kiwanis club at their luncheon at Hotel Harding yesterday.

Most of the claims that have been built around the signing of the declaration of independence is misleading the speaker said. The declaration of independence was not signed on the fourth day of July as is popularly supposed and neither did the document receive the signatures of all the signers at any one time," it was pointed out by the speaker. On the contrary names were not added to the paper of through June and up into August or later.

Ideas instead in the declaration of independence which the speaker declared to be the greatest political document in the world, were not original with Thomas Jefferson, but were the thoughts of John Locke, English philosopher, the speaker declared. It was to John Locke, Sir Isaac Newton and John Milton that the writers of the declaration of independence owed their inspiration.

Document Changed

After drafting the [illegible] the speaker said congress changed [illegible] words of the declaration and struck out two paragraphs. One of the paragraphs struck out was written by Jefferson and was an indictment against the English parliament, whereas other members of congress blamed the government already on account King George.

The second paragraph to be removed was written by Franklin condemning the English king for the existence of slavery. There are now five copies of the declaration in existence, Mr. Workman said, but it is believed the one known as the Richard Lee draft is the original as written by Jefferson.

Before the introduction of the speaker, the members of the club were entertained with vocal songs by the American Broadcasting Quartet of Chicago. The quartet were in conference of the employes of the Pennsylvania railroad [illegible] as under the man[illegible] ent of city to take part in the program at [illegible] primarily the meeting of the Marion Traffic Club [illegible] this held last night.

FORMER MARION MAN IS MURDER TRIAL LAWYER

Donald M. Marshman Defends Woman in Sensational Case in Cleveland

Donald M. Marshman, former Marion resident, was one of the defense attorneys who scored a victory in the sensational murder trial of Mrs. Helen Glaser in Cleveland yesterday, when the jury acquitted Mrs. Glaser. The jury deliberated only 15 minutes following a trial which lasted several days and which attracted widespread attention throughout the northern part of the state.

Newspaper accounts of the trial describe Marshman's plea for his client's acquittal as one of the most dramatic features of the final proceedings.

Mrs. Glaser was accused of having shot her former husband's second wife. A note presumed to show that it was a case of suicide was alleged to have been written by Helen Glaser to cover up the supposed slaying.

Marshman, who is rapidly gaining prominence in legal circles at Cleveland, is a nephew of Judge George B. Seybold of the Marion County common pleas court and son-in-law of Mrs. Daniel Evans, 215 St. Joseph-st.

Shovels Again Win; Osgood Shuts Out Tap & Die

SPORT SAUCE

BY EDDIE SCHOENLEB

Jack Tilley, in charge of the Y. M. C. A. camp athletic activities at Camp Robert Uhler, Hepburn, is making splendid progress in his work.

This fact was indicated yesterday afternoon by the display of interest in the first track and field meet held at the camp. Marion youths as a rule have shown little interest in this sport but now they're wild about it.

DWe visited the camp yesterday just to see what it was all about. Incidentally a track meet was on the program. Not only a few took part but all were interested and all participated in the greater share of the events. And they played the game to win. We saw one youth who was so sincere in his effort to win for his tent turn away with tears in his eyes when he failed to make the he got in the pole vault.

AND, speaking of pole vaulting, we'll never forget the last effort made by the midget of the camp, Everett Williams. Everett, who never grew a little over three feet in height was in every event and placed in a number of them. But his performance in the pole vault is especially worthy of mention.

The diminutive youth is just a little too small to handle a long pole and as the cross bar went up and the competitors dropped out one by one, Everett's hands climbed higher and higher on his pole. Finally only two were left, Haver Alspach and Everett.

The cross bar went up to the 6 ft. 8 in. mark and Everett had reached the end of his pole. But he stuck out his chest and took his three trials like a man, although forced to grapple his pole about a foot below the point where he would have taken hold had he had a longer one. He failed by inches and Haver Alspach, who probably would have won the event in the end anyway, took first place.

THE track meet was followed by a brief swimming period in which Jack Cookston demonstrated his ability in swimming under water. Jack can disappear in the water off the south bank of Lake Hepburn and come up half way across the lake.

BUT, coming back to the athletic director, we were particularly impressed by the extensive sport program planned by Jack.

The track and field meet was only one of many things in that line. Basketball, recreational ball, baseball, volleyball, tennis, swimming meets, everything possible in the camp, is going at full speed.

And then Jack says "I guess that's about all we can work in during one period." He talked as if there was a number of other things to "work in" but we can't seem to think of any others.

Yes, it's a great camp and Jack Tilley is a great athletic manager, and Don Burson, camp director, is on the job all the time. We spent an enjoyable afternoon with the boys and are planning on a return trip in the near future.

FAIL TO PASS

Although the general average of Harvard athletes in their studies is high, three major sport captains failed to pass their examinations and in consequence did not receive their degrees at the recent commencement.

Toomire Wins Pitchers' Battle With Bartsch As Osgood Team Triumphs, 1-0

Erie Shops and C., D. & M. Go into Second Pace Tie in Industrial League When They Win Over Packing Co. and Huber

THE Marion Steam Shovel Sluggers strengthened their hold on first place in the Industrial League last night when they beat out the Packing Eagles, 2 to 0, in one of the best games of the year.

But the rest of the league is a real mixup of the night's games as the result of the three or four shutouts last night.

Osgood pulled the trick that moved one team up from second to third and added two other winning clubs to the four second only one game behind the league leaders. Osgood, with Toomire on the mound defeated the Gardner Tap & Die Co., 1 to 0, in a game that was a pitchers' duel from start to finish between that famous hurler of the Osgood crew and the mates Bartsch of the Tap & Die.

Pitchers' Battle

Both pitchers are considered among the leading twirlers of the league and both proved their class last night. Osgood got four hits off Bartsch and Bartsch struck out eight men while the Tap & Die received two off Toomire. Toomire was credited with only one fan out.

Osgood made its only run in the first frame but that tally was enough to win the game and put a serious crimp in the hopes of the Gardner Tap & Die for a championship in the Industrial League.

Bartsch allowed Fairfield only three hits while the Shovels were collecting five hoppers to win the game. The feature was another pitchers battle between Gamble and Bacon. Gamble struck out only two men while Bacon doubled that number, but Gamble allowed only three walks while Bacon gave out five free tickets.

Shovels Win

The Shovels made all their runs in the third frame when they registered a couple of hits and with the aid of a base on balls and error scored two runs that won the game.

The Erie Roundhouse and C., D. & M. shot into a second place tie by winning their games over the Marion Packing Co. and Huber Co., respectively. The Erie crew won 4 to 0, and the Electricians copped the game 11 to 5. Each of the second place teams have now won five games and lost

JIM MALONEY WINS OVER GORMAN BY FOUL

Less Than 3,000 Persons See Joe Coffey's Heavyweight Festival

Chicago, July 2—Although Red Gorman, Kansas City heavyweight, last night was awarded the decision over Jim Maloney of Boston in the fourth round, Joe Coffey, promoter of the show today terms Maloney the real loser.

Less than 3,000 fans were attracted to Coffey's heavyweight festival, which left the promoter holding the bag to the tune of nine thousand dollars.

Maloney was a keen disappointment. The Irish lad is Gorman handled him as he pleased in the first round Gorman shot a hard right to Maloney's groin and the latter went down, apparently writhing in pain. Maloney claimed a foul and the referee agreed with him.

The decision provided that if this was Maloney at his best, Jack Dempsey had little to fear from Jack Sharkey, who appears to have all he could handle when he fought the Boston heavyweight.

Hartman Stars

Elmo Hartman took first in the 100 yd dash making it in 13.2 seconds on the narrow cinder track at camp. He cleared 5 ft. 11 in. for first in the high jump, made 13 ft. 1 in. for leadership in the running broad jump, jumped 5 ft. 5 in. in the standing broad, and took his fifth first when he heaved the discus 50 ft. 3 in.

Dick Wright was next high individual scorer with three firsts and a few other places. He threw the javelin 56 ft. 2 in. put the shot 23 ft. 10 in., and run the 50-yd. dash in 6.1 seconds. Haver Alspach vaulted 6 ft. 5 in. for a first place while the diminutive Everett Williams gave him a run for his money. Earl Castner won the baseball throw, hurling the sphere 167 feet.

Williams Places

Everett Williams took three seconds and a third but was never quite good enough to top the leaders. Regg Curl, Jack Cookston, Charlie Barnd, Marion Born, Bill Stark, Paul Hunt and Warren Bender were among those who placed in events.

The track and field meet yesterday afternoon is only one of the many athletic affairs that have been planned by Ullery and are being carried on each day.

A basketball elimination tournament is under way between the various units and will be completed by Monday. A recreational ball league has been formed with the last games to be played today or Saturday. A swimming meet, including fancy diving, dashes, under-water swimming and other events is scheduled for Monday. A volleyball net has been hung up and volleyball tournaments will probably be on the ball after this week. Tennis courts also are available.

The boys now in camp will leave Tuesday morning and be replaced by another group that afternoon. With his program well under way, Ullery expects to develop interest in all sports.

He has a football or two with him and is also teaching the fundamentals of the grid game.

-o- The New Book -o-

BY FRANCES JENNINGS

THE reader who is not a Sherlock Holmes enthusiast is to be pitied. As a reviewer in The Boston Transcript says: Something must be lacking in his mental equipment. Of course not even the most avid follower of the career of this famous detective—so far—has indeed that it is almost impossible to believe that he did not once and more and hate his being—I contend that every one of his adventures are equally plausible or equally entertaining. But take them all in all, it is doubtful if any hero of fiction has given so much pleasure to multitudes during the progress of forty years. Even the least of his exploits is better than the masterpiece of many another detective.

With "The Case Book of Sherlock Holmes," we have his last farewell appearance on any stage. This we are assured and promised by his creator, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle before he is finally determined to bring his career to an end, feeling that his interests and energies should not be directed too much into one channel. That pale, ascetic face and loose-limbed figure are taking up all undue share of my imagination," he says. But when the deed was done, and he fancied that Sherlock Holmes was disposed of for good and all, his ghost would not down. The coroner had pronounced a verdict over the remains, and it was therefore possible, without straining the credulity of the reader—especially as that reader was eager to hear from Sherlock Holmes again—to resuscitate him.

Sir Arthur does not regret this resuscitation of his hero. In spite of the time taken in the writing of what he frankly calls "these lighter sketches," he has not been prevented from making researches into the other and infinitely deeper channels of such varied branches of literature as history, psychical historical novels, physical research and the drama. "Had Holmes never existed I could not have done more than he may perhaps have done a little in the way of the recognition of my more serious Literary work." And of course, although Sir Arthur does not tell us so, there has been the compelling urge of editor and publisher, who have irresistibly tempted him again and again with their call for "more Sherlock Holmes" and the promise of large checks in payment therefor.

"THE BEADLE" BY PAULINE SMITH

DON'T miss this novel, by the author of "The Little Karoo." It stands head and shoulders above the run of good fiction. It deserves real popularity and a place upon your bookshelves after the season is over.

South Africa, seen through the eyes of a woman whose sympathy and understanding make her able to portray the men and women of the veldt, must prove interesting. When there is added a clear, pellucid prose style, with a rhythm reminiscent of the psalms, and an exceptional narrative skill, the result is a novel well worth while.

Andrina du Troit, the central figure of "The Beadle", has an encompassing innocence and sweetness which makes its inevitable appeal to every one in her small world.—The Chicago Daily News.

"WE LIVE BUT ONCE," BY RUPERT HUGHES

In "We Live But Once," Mr. Hughes has made an attempt to write a very modern novel indeed. It is not necessary for the reader to take it too seriously, for neither the situations nor the plot are convincing. To turn some old-fashioned ideas upside down seems to be Mr. Hughes's purpose, but he somehow fails to succeed in conveying either shocks or thrills.

In spite of an attempt at opulent setting, the loves of his hero and heroine are as sordid as if they dwelt obscurely in ordinary apartments, odorous of corned beef and cabbage. Valerie Daingerfield, hearing the sound of Blair Fleming's musical laughter in a Santa Barbara restaurant, immediately feels a premonition of falling madly in love with the owner of the mellow voice. This is followed by meeting him at a musicale, and subsequently taking a motor ride with him up a mountain road, where their car becomes stalled in a thunder storm.

About here, the reader begins to be extremely bored, but continuing with the couple, he tags along wearily, meeting Mrs. Blair Fleming, who is shallow. Having pinned this label upon her, the author apparently feels that he has created a character, and then proceeds to detail just how an up-to-date woman like Valerie can, if she plays her part smoothly, annex a husband, although he may unfortunately be married. As long as the wife is shallow, you see, it is quite legitimate. The unfortunate Blair has rather a difficult time between his wife and the energetic young woman who has fallen in love with him, but it is all smoothed out in the end by his shallow mate's discovery that she loves another man. She will go to Paris, obtain a divorce, and every one will be happy.

The novel clatters along on wooden clogs. A lighter touch might make it farcical, a stronger one would invest it with true dramatic intensity, but there arises in the mind of the reader the suspicion that Mr. Hughes designed the story to be "smarts" Instead, it is merely tawdry.

BUCYRUS MAN FILES ANSWER IN LOCAL SUIT

E. R. Schoolfield Denies Responsibility in Accident Preceding Damage Action

E. R. Schoolfield, of Bucyrus who, with his son, C. B. Schoolfield is defendant in a $50,000 damage suit brought by Miss Marie Rohner, 354 Buckeye-st, Akron filed an answer in the court of common pleas yesterday in which he denies that he was in any way responsible for the automobile accident in which the plaintiff was injured.

A car driven by Miss Rohner, according to her petition, was struck by L. R. Schoolfield's automobile directly in front of E. Center-st, Marion, on U. S. Route 23, about two miles north of Bucyrus about two o'clock in the afternoon of March, June 13, 1925. She charges that the car was driving at a car with her father's knowledge and consent.

As a result of her injuries, Miss Rohner's voice was permanently impaired and she was otherwise disabled, she asserts. She represents that damage to her vocal organs was especially serious because she had spent considerable time and money in voice culture in preparation for becoming an entertainer.

L. R. Schoolfield in his answer denies that his son was driving the automobile with his knowledge and consent but that the son had started on the trip of his own volition and for purposes wholly his own. The son was 19 years of age at the time of the accident.

The Schoolfields reside at 233 E. Rose-st, Bucyrus. The father's answer was filed through his attorneys, C. H. Workman, of Mansfield.

Answer Filed

Ephraim and Raymond Borders, party defendants in the foreclosure suit of the Buckeye State Building & Loan Co. against Richard F. Woodrow and others, filed their answer in the court of common pleas yesterday stating that they are friends of the land involved in the action. They ask that their interest be protected in final adjudication of the suit.

Foreclosure and sale of the property consisting of farm land in Salt Rock township is asked by the Buckeye State Building & Loan Co. on the first mortgage claim.

The Borders answer was filed through the law firm, Crow & Williamson.

Divorces Granted

Two divorces were granted by Judge Scofield following hearings in the court of common pleas yesterday. Both decrees were based upon grounds of extreme cruelty.

James J. Kerr was granted a decree in his suit against Maria E. Kerr. They were married Nov. 1, 1905 and have no children.

Charlotte L. Rose obtained a decree in her petition filed against William H. Rose, the decree also awarding her custody of the two minor children, aged six and four years.

Mr. and Mrs. Rose were married Sept. 6 1917.

FOREIGN BRAINS AID NATIONALIST ARMY IN CHINA

German General in Pay of Moscow Is Leading Military Mind

Peking, June — The military success of the thousand armies of General Chiang Kai-shih have been due directly to foreign brains, asserted an American military observer here. The foreign brains are chiefly those of General Galleus or Blucher as he real name is.

A poor soldier of fortune and a very modest one at that Galleus for two years or more has been the push behind the Cantonese armies and yet he is little known and could now has been thought to be a Russian.

Descendant of Blucher

Instead of that General Galleus is asserted to be a German prolific related to the Blucher of history. During the war as a lieutenant general he commanded a German Army Corps and was either a Russian prisoner or else made his way into Rus in after the revolution.

With his German military training Blucher in 1918 was commanding a Red cavalry detachment at Ekaterinberg. Later he won fame for his fight against the White Detachments in Siberia with the position of division commander.

From 1921 until 1925 when he appeared in China, nothing was heard of Blucher, or rather Galleus as he then became. With the Soviet influx into the Cantonese cause Galleus was eventually made High Military Advisor to the Headquarters of the Nationalist Revolutionary Army. With that nominal title he is actually Chief of the General Staff.

Has Russian Staff

The thoroughness and posh of the nationalist army is German without doubt, say the American army men although the staff work more closely resembles the Russian. That is explainable by the fact that General Galleus has a Russian staff.

Although documents seized in the raided Soviet Military Attache's office here proved that General Galleus received his salary from the Moscow government nevertheless American officials think that General Galleus has little interest in politics, whether they be red or not — that he is first and last a soldier and a very successful one at that.

A good deterrent for a man who drinks too much is a moving picture of him when he is drunk.

QUIET FOURTH OF JULY PROMISED AT GALION

Sale and Use of Fireworks Within City Limits Prohibited

Galion, July 1—Galion is to have another "safety first" Independence Day, according to a recent statement made by Chief of Police Frank Cook.

As in several previous years use of firework of any sort is prohibited within the city limits. The special ordinance which was made several years ago is still in effect and prompt arrests are to be made if youths of the city attempt any dangerous celebration.

Fireworks is not being sold in any of the city stores complying also with the council's ruling and although a number of stands have been erected outside the limits of Galion with a large supply of the forbidden articles on sale, all indications are to the effect that the "safe and sane" idea now advocated is changing tradition and that other methods of celebration are being sought.

Mayor H. H. Hartman will as usual issue the annual proclamation calling for a fitting observance of the day and although several of the patriotic orders will have meetings, the usual demonstrations which have always been features of the day are to be eliminated, and the nation's birthday will be quietly commemorated.

DIVIDEND MONEY USED FOR MART INVESTMENTS

Bear Scurries as Speculative Favorites Lead in Strong Movement

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks inactive. Industrial stocks irregular. Domestic bonds fairly steady. Foreign bonds strong. Call money 5 per cent. Grain steady. Oil slightly reactionary. Cotton steady. Rubber steady. Sugar steady. Foreign exchange firm.

New York, July 1—Aggressive bull support in the forward movement of stock prices today was furnished by a number of the well known specialties favorites and, after a period of mild reaction, the whole market developed a strong and sturdy tone, sending the bear scurrying in confusion.

Though not unexpected, the decline in call money from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent was a welcome evidence of the easing of the tight money market situation, for a month or least. The 5 per cent rate attracted a good volume of outof-town funds.

There was a noticeable increase in the demand for high grade investment stocks. The Southern Pacific, General Electric, United States Steel, General Motors, Woolworth, Sears Roebuck, etc., thus signalizing the return to investment channels of a good slice of the interest and dividend money paid out today by the corporations.

The best reports of the day were submitted by the nationally prominent mercantile houses and big department stores. The June reports, now to hand, indicate an increase of about 5 per cent over the same month last year. The first 75 railroads to report net incomes for May showed a decline of 1.8 per cent as compared with last year and current car loading also show a slight shrinkage.

BROTHERHOOD GOES BACK TO OLD METHODS

Abolishes Present Offices and Names Johnston and Three Temporary Trustees

Cleveland, July 1—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers today had returned to the original method of governing the organization following abolishment of offices of president, vice president and secretary, which were created in 1924.

Alvanley Johnston, once a caller on the Great Northern Railroad automatically was placed in command of the B of L E affairs following adoption of the abolishment resolution by the triennial convention of the organization, in session here yesterday.

The resolution went into effect as it was understood here today when affected are W B Prenter president and L G Griffin first vice president who also acted as treasurer. H P Daugherty second vice president and C F Lund grand secretary.

Trustees Named

Three trustees were named temporarily by Johnston as follows: George D Barnhart of Spokane, Wash; A J Campbell, Fort Wayne, Ind and C W Simpson, Lancaster, Tex. Hereafter these trustees will take over the management of the brotherhoods financial and business enterprises with the exception of the pension and insurance departments and report semi-annually to the organization's advisory board.

Barnhart is president of the Portland and Spokane Brotherhood Banks and chairman of the Pacific Investment Co of Seattle which Simpson is president of the Lancaster Trust Banking Co. Together with Campbell they will manage the brotherhoods controlling interest in the 10 cooperative banks scattered throughout the country, the investment and securities company and the Venice land development project in Florida.

Discontinues Money

The convention yesterday voted to discontinue its annual contribution of $48,000 to the Weekly Labor Journal published at Washington by a combination of railway labor organizations. The money coupled with allotments of the four offices mentioned will save the brotherhood $100,000 a year, it was said.

According to announcement at the convention Tuesday the Cleveland Brotherhood Bank today was to pay its regular semi-annual five per cent dividend to stockholders of the $1,000,000 capital stock.

Within 10 days the convention is expected to elect permanent officers under the reversal of system. Prenter and the others it was understood will continue to hold office until the present convention comes to an end.
